AFP: Global cyber anti-garbage drive aims to muster millions

(AFP) – Jan 12, 2012

TALLINN — Cyber-environmentalists said Thursday they aim to mobilise millions of people around the world for a mass waste clean-up, saying they had to step in because governments had failed to do so.

Jan 7th 2012

"GARBOLOGY" is a word popularised (and possibly coined) by A.J. Weberman, a writer and activist whose credo was "you are what you throw away". He made his name by rifling through Bob Dylan's rubbish in search of insights into the singer's soul, only to conclude—after trawling through used nappies, ripped-up fan mail and veterinary bills—that the fabled crooner was a pampered, middle-class family man, even in his heyday.

April 21 - the day, when in 1948 one of the US stores sold the very first Polaroid camera; the day, when in 1926 our beloved Elisabeth II celebrated her first birthday. These are pretty much all the more or less interesting facts I've digged about today's shiny day. In Latvia, however, we don't celebrate either of these great events, so I didn't find any reason not to participate in the Great Cleaning Saturday - which is a national voluntary work day and a part of the "World Cleanup 2012" initiative.
